Your kindness, O LORD, endures forever;
forsake not the work of your hands.
-Ps. 138, 8.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

The commissioning of St. Peter, Simon (son of Jonah,) as the chief of the Apostles holds an special place in the life and understanding of the Church, that is, each and every one of us.

The honesty of St. Peter is intimately tied to his all too obvious human preponderance to selfishness in questions to Christ, complaints about others, and eventually, his denial of even knowing Christ. This, however, is but the prelude to the life of one who is open to the Lord. St. Peter will eventually shed his blood and lose his life for Christ. All Christians are called to such development. All Christians are called to such a reward.

The great spiritual master, Thomas a Kempis wrote:

If you want to learn something that will really help you, learn to see yourself as God sees you and not as you see yourself in the distorted mirror of your own self-importance. (Imitation of Christ, Bk. 1, Chp. 2.)

Every Christian is called to unite with the example and history of St. Peter since none of us are perfect. More importantly, we are called to draw close his saintly example; an example of teaching, perseverance, and sacrifice. For us, that example will be the liberation of our souls and the sanctification of many in the world.

May God bless you,

MINISTRIES

One Family - Journeying together in Communion, Participation and Mission

Each year Americans celebrate Labor Day as a national holiday to honor working people. For Catholics, it is also an opportunity to recall the traditional teaching of the Church on dignity of work and the rights of workers. As Pope Francis pointed out, "Work is fundamental to the dignity of a person. . . It gives one the ability to maintain oneself, one's family, to contribute to the growth of one's own Nation."

This Labor Day, the economic facts are stark, and the human costs are real, especially for the poor, who may be unemployed or underemployed, the struggle to support their families is a daily battle. Please consider supporting the Catholic Ministries Appeal which supports the programs and services that assist families and individuals struggling in our communities.
